The Assembly of First Nations (AFN) is a national advocacy organization that works to advance the collective aspirations of First Nations individuals and communities across Canada on matters of national or international nature and concern.

With the passing of the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples Act, Canada has committed to closing the socio-economic gap and ensuring First Nations exercise jurisdiction over their inherent and Treaty rights and title. Sustained and continued investments are needed to uphold the UN Declaration's articles and allow First Nations to be equal partners in resetting and restoring the relationship.

Long-term investments in First Nations infrastructure – roads, housing, water treatment and connectivity – will empower First Nations contribution to Canada's economy and result in economic growth, wealth, and prosperity.

Investments in education, health, skills training, and justice programs ensure equality and equity for the next seven generations of First Nations citizens, inclusive of women, children and youth, Elders and 2SLGBTQIA+ persons, to lead healthy and prosperous lives.

Investments in First Nations climate and conservation leadership, and other environmental investments, will ensure our collective well-being.
